| 1 Course Title : 現代日本人の社会意識と行動 JAPANESE SOCIAL ATTITUDES AND BEHAVIOR IN THE CONTEMPORARY SOCIETY |
| 2 Sub Title : |
| 3 Name Of Lecturer : Ryotaro Uemura |
| 4 Course Description : How do Japanese think about such topics as politics, family, and religion? What is the general pattern of behaviors of Japanese within such domains as family, marriage, and work? The goal of this course is to understand Japanese social attitudes and behavior in contemporary society. We will cover various topics such as the level of subjective happiness of Japanese, Japanese views on the household division of labor, and Japanese perception of religion. To understand social attitudes and behavior of the Japanese, we will rely on social scientific research which analyzes a variety of recent survey data. Students are expected to develop skills to interpret those research findings in the form of graphs and charts. Further, the course will introduce students to the practice of comparative study, as we will attempt to occasionally compare the research findings of Japanese to the counterparts in other countries. |

| 1 Course Title : 現代日本社会における家族 FAMILY IN CONTEMPORARY JAPANESE SOCIETY |
| 2 Sub Title : |
| 3 Name Of Lecturer : Ryotaro Uemura |
| 4 Course Description : This is an introductory course to family in contemporary Japanese society. Family is one of the fundamental social units, and we will attempt to understand Japanese and contemporary Japanese society by focusing on the topic of family. The course examines contemporary phenomena and covers a wide range of topics such as marriage and divorce, childrearing, gender roles within the household, and work-life balance. The course occasionally introduces students to the comparative cases of other countries. Thus, students are expected to develop comparative analytic perspectives as well. While there are many disciplinary approaches to the study of family, this course mainly adopts social scientific (in particular, sociological) perspectives as we mostly rely on social scientific research for our discussion. |
