

International Comparisons of Taxation in Developing Countries
2017

Keio University
Faculty of Business and Commerce

International Comparisons of Taxation in Developing Countries 2017

This study tries to compare economic environments, fiscal positions, tax systems, tax administration and prospects in tax reform in selected developing countries, namely, Indonesia, Malaysia and Cameroon.

In so doing, we can identify common needs in tax reform such as tax-bare broadening, simplifying tax schedule, neutralizing tax burden, efficiency and equity improving.

At the same time, country-specific issues vary from country to country. They reflect different stages of development in respective countries.

Members of this study consists of

Yukinobu Kitamura	Keio University, Faculty of Business and Commerce
Siti Vibriyani	Keio University, Graduate Student
Zia Ul Haq	Keio University, Graduate Student
Lau Siew Ling	Keio University, Graduate Student
Mohammad Mazlan Arifin	Keio University, Graduate Student
Alomowing Françoise Aghedseh	Keio University, Graduate Student

Contents

Introduction

1	Indonesia Siti Vibriyani and Zia Ul Haq	1
2	Malaysia Lau Siew Ling and Mohammad Mazlan Arifin	63
3	Cameroon Alomowing Françoise Aghedseh	115

Introduction

This study tries to compare economic environments, technical assistance in fiscal policy and tax administration in selected developing countries; Indonesia, Malaysia and Cameroon.

Individual country chapter shares basically the same organizational framework.

- I. Introduction
- II. Macroeconomic Activity
 - II. 1 International Environment
 - II. 2 Domestic Environment
 - II. 3 Fiscal Position
- III. Tax System
- IV. Country-Specific Issues
- V. Summary and Conclusion

In so doing, we can compare countries on the same issues, identify similarities and differences and highlight country-specific issues.

Individual country chapter is written by a tax expert of respective country. It contains valuable statistical and policy information. Individual chapters, then, are compiled and edited by Yukinobu Kitamura. Yuko Kawasaki carried out an excellent editorial work.