

*International Comparisons of Taxation in Developing Countries
2016*

Keio University
Faculty of Business and Commerce

International Comparisons of Taxation in Developing Countries 2016

This study tries to compare economic environments, fiscal positions, tax systems, tax administration and prospects in tax reform in selected developing countries, namely, China, Indonesia, Vietnam and Rwanda.

In so doing, we can identify common needs in tax reform such as tax-bare broadening, simplifying tax schedule, neutralizing tax burden, efficiency and equity improving.

At the same time, country-specific issues vary from country to country. They reflect different stages of development in respective countries.

Members of this study consists of

Yukinobu Kitamura	Keio University, Faculty of Business and Commerce
Cao Houle	Keio University, Graduate Student
Rieska Wulandari	Keio University, Graduate Student
Beta Putra Sarjana	Keio University, Graduate Student
Pham Thi Huong Ly	Keio University, Graduate Student
Uwinbabazi Rebecca	Keio University, Graduate Student

Contents

Introduction

vii

1	China Cao Houle	1
2	Indonesia Rieska Wulandari and Beta Putra Sarjana	37
3	Vietnam Pham Thi Huong Ly	85
4	Rwanda Uwinbabazi Rebecca	137

Introduction

This study tries to compare economic environments, technical assistance in fiscal policy and tax administration in selected developing countries; China, Indonesia, Vietnam and Rwanda.

Individual country chapter shares basically the same organizational framework.

- I. Introduction
- II. Macroeconomic Activity
 - II. 1 International Environment
 - II. 2 Domestic Environment
 - II. 3 Fiscal Position
- III. Tax System
- IV. Country-Specific Issues
- V. Summary and Conclusion

In so doing, we can compare countries on the same issues, identify similarities and differences and highlight country-specific issues.

Individual country chapter is written by a tax expert of respective country. It contains valuable statistical and policy information. Individual chapters, then, are compiled and edited by Yukinobu Kitamura. Yuko Kawasaki carried out an excellent editorial work.