

*International Comparisons of Taxation in Developing Countries
2008*

Keio University
Faculty of Business and Commerce

International Comparisons of Taxation in Developing Countries 2008

This study tries to compare economic environments, fiscal positions, tax systems, tax administration and prospects in tax reform in selected developing countries, namely, Indonesia, Bangladesh, Nepal and Tanzania.

In so doing, we can identify common needs in tax reform such as tax-bare broadening, simplifying tax schedule, neutralizing tax burden, efficiency and equity improving.

At the same time, country-specific issues vary from country to country. They reflect different stages of development in respective countries.

Members of this study consists of

Yukinobu Kitamura	Keio University, Faculty of Business and Commerce
Lydia Merry	Keio University, Graduate Student
Satrio Adhi Wibowo	Keio University, Graduate Student
Mohammad Akbar Hossain	Keio University, Graduate Student
Rajendra Kumar Hamal	Keio University, Graduate Student
Herman Mecky Mpangile	Keio University, Graduate Student

Contents

Introduction

vii

1.	Indonesia Lydia Merry and Satrio Adhi Wibowo	1
2.	Bangladesh Mohammad Akbar Hossain	63
3.	Nepal Rajendra Kumar Hamal	111
4.	Tanzania Herman Mecky Mpangile	169

Introduction

This study tries to compare economic environments, technical assistance in fiscal policy and tax administration in selected developing countries; Indonesia, Bangladesh, Nepal and Tanzania.

Individual country chapter shares basically the same organizational framework.

- I. Introduction
- II. Macroeconomic Activity
 - A. International Environment
 - B. Domestic Environment
 - C. Fiscal Position
- III. Tax System
- IV. Country-Specific Issues
- V. Summary and Conclusion

In so doing, we can compare countries on the same issues, identify similarities and difference and highlight country-specific issues.

Individual country chapter is written by a tax expert of respective country. It contains valuable statistical and policy information. Individual chapters, then, are compiled and edited by Yukinobu Kitamura.