Join our School of Language, Literature, and Media

A BLENDED STUDY EXPERIENCE

Spend two weeks studying with the University of Essex's School of Language, Literature and Media.

Drawing on the School's expertise, you will explore British society and culture through language, literature and media while developing your English and intercultural communication skills.

The programme combines tailored sessions with selected lectures and seminars, giving you an insight into studying these subjects at a UK university.

You will also have opportunities to exchange ideas and learn alongside Essex students in an international academic environment

PROGRAMME HIGHLIGHTS

- British society, culture and everyday life
- English language and intercultural communication
- A final group presentation to bring your learning together
- Selected lectures and seminars with Essex students
- Cultural activities in Colchester London and British culture immersion trip
